MESSAGE:

Hey guys,

So, I'm throwing this out into the virtual ether because I don't have everyone's email address. Hopefully, this message will find its way to you.

Here's the deal: Starting 11:00am Eastern on May 26, I'm off the grid until Monday, June 5. There isn't usually much conversation around my vacations, but this time the family and I are headed out on a cruise. Picture me, sun hat, flip flops and totally unreachable. I thought I'd give you all the heads up in case there's anything you need to square away before I head out. It's always smoother sailing (see what I did there?) if we can preempt any issues. Despite my absence, the show must go on. We're prepping a Mailbag week as we speak. I know a bunch of you have the show set to auto-download and plug into your systems. I'm not clued in on all the FTP downloaders out there, but it seems many grab the latest uploads from the FTP. If that's your setup, heads up, there's a wave (yep, another cruise pun) of show uploads coming on Wednesday the 24th. These shows will cover 5/29 to 6/4. I'm uploading them early so you've got time to flag any issues. The shows for 5/25, 5/26, and the weekend will drop on their regular days. I hope this all makes sense. If anything's unclear or you have issues, my email and cell are below. It's always a pleasure and honor working with you all.
